PRESIDENT'S

Message - August 2026

At the very outset, my Committee and I thank every member for the faith and trust you have placed in us. That confidence is not taken lightly. It remains our unwavering commitment to provide the Club with management that is quality-driven, efficient, transparent, and above all, member-friendly. Every decision we take is guided by one simple question: Is this in the best interest of the Club and its members?

I would now like to briefly share with you some of the work we have undertaken in these first few months of our tenure.

Our Pledge and Priorities

When we stood before you during the elections, our pledge was clear and unequivocal: Accountability, Credibility, and Transparency.

We promised that Golf Course Upkeep would remain our absolute top priority. Alongside, we committed to greater transparency, greener initiatives, better tournament systems, broader member engagement, and practical improvements in everyday Club functioning.

I am proud to say that we have begun converting that pledge into visible, on-ground action. And as always, our major emphasis remains the golf course – because golf is, and shall always remain, the very heart and soul of this institution.

Golf Course & Agronomy

I am delighted to inform you that after a rigorous and thorough selection process, we have appointed Mr. Anil Sharma as our Course Superintendent. A comprehensive audit of course conditions and machinery has been completed. Based on that assessment, I can confidently assure you that the Club has adequate machinery, and no major fresh purchase is proposed this financial year. More importantly – there is no requirement to redo any Green.

Our focus will not be on heavy, avoidable capital expenditure. Instead, we will invest our energy in better maintenance, superior presentation, improved playing conditions, and disciplined agronomic practices. Timely coring of the course and greens has already been undertaken and will continue as scheduled.

I want to personally acknowledge the dedication of the Captain of the Club and our Course Superintendent – they have been working round the clock to ensure that members play on the Main Greens, even in inclement weather. That is the kind of commitment that makes this Club special. For every golfer, this means better surfaces and more consistent play, week after week.

Greening & Aesthetics

We are giving focused attention to the appearance and environmental health of our Club. Over 1,200 trees have already been planted, including more than 250 fruit-bearing trees – adding real ecological value to our grounds. In addition, 1,000 pots of seasonal flowers – zinnia hybrid, cockscomb, celosia, torenia, and portulaca – now bloom across the property. We plan to add even more fruit and flowering trees during the monsoon.

This is not just about looks – it is about creating a living, breathing space that every member feels proud to call their own.

Sustainability & Infrastructure

We are walking the talk on sustainability. The halogen lighting infrastructure on the existing Fairways & Greens, was decommissioned and replaced with LED luminaires thereby saving 60% energy used, with the total project cost estimated at approx ₹32 lakhs. To optimize the total cost the decommissioned inventory will be liquidated via public auction for an anticipated recovery of ₹7 lakhs, reducing the net project CapEx to ₹25 lakhs. Funds have been allocated for lighting Holes No. 2, 3, and 16, and we aim to restart 9-Hole Night Golf as part of our Diamond Jubilee celebrations – a gift to our members and a tribute to our glorious history.

We have also waterproofed the Club House roof and installed an 80 KW Solar Plant on the Clubhouse roof. This alone has reduced electricity bills by approximately ₹1 lakh per month. These steps are not just environmentally responsible – they are financially prudent, and they protect your Club for the long term.

On infrastructure, I am happy to share that the civil works of the Gazebo are complete, furnishing is underway, and the New Dining Hall is also under construction. We are building for the future, without losing sight of our heritage.

IT & Systems Modernization

In today's world, a great Club experience depends as much on digital systems as on grass and greens. Following a detailed IT audit, we are addressing four critical areas to enhance the member experience when availing Club facilities:

- Network Architecture: Reorganising our fragmented wired network to enable future upgrades and seamless integration.
- Software Integration: Evaluating integration of accounting, membership, and handicapping platforms for greater efficiency.

- New Website: Under development with a modern design – featuring an events dashboard, course fly-by, online coach booking, payments, and easy access to Club rules.
- Digitisation: Moving Membership, Party Booking, and Tournament forms online – reducing walk-ins and cutting processing time significantly.

We are also planning a digital Legends Corner, where all our achievers and Legends will find a permanent place of honour. An IT company has been engaged to build a streamlined, integrated, and future-ready environment – because our members deserve nothing less. The result for you will be simpler bookings, faster information, and a smoother overall Club experience.

Health, Safety & Welfare

The wellbeing of our members, staff, and extended family is non-negotiable. I am deeply grateful to TAC Security for gifting us a Golf Cart Ambulance – a thoughtful and practical addition that can make a critical difference in an emergency.

Several health initiatives have already been launched:

- Eye Camp with the National Association for the Blind – over 175 members, staff, caddies, and families were tested, with free medicines and spectacles distributed. More camps are planned.
- Liver Fibroscan Camp on 03 April 2026, in collaboration with Eva Inter Alumni Group. Periodic camps will continue.
- Our Occupational Health Centre has been taken over by the Max Group, refurbished with a defibrillator and medicines. Max will also renovate the caddies' toilet at no cost and offer attractive discounts to our members.
- Staff Health check-ups, including CBC, HbA1c, and typhoid carrier tests as per FSSAI norms, have been conducted.
- Vaccination: Hepatitis A and Typhoid camps for food handlers at subsidised cost – fully Club-funded.
- Upcoming Camps: Liver fibrosis, bone densitometry, and adult vaccination awareness.
- BLS Training is being rolled out for staff and interested members – so that we are always prepared to respond effectively on the course.

Committees & Junior Golf

We have constituted a Reforms Committee and a CGL Committee to take member views and examine areas of improvement. Several pledge items are already implemented; others are under phased examination.

I am pleased to inform you that the Reforms Committee, headed by Justice Jaishree Thakur, has submitted its report, which is now under consideration of the Managing Committee. It will be tabled before members in the next EGM/AGM. A copy is already available on the Notice Board – because transparency is not just a word; it is our practice.

CGL – our flagship tournament – must remain transparent, credible, and enjoyable for all. We have enhanced CGL share transfer fees, and the additional revenue will fund mid-season tournaments for non-CGL members, ensuring the benefits reach the broader membership.

A new Sponsorship Policy has been formulated for transparent fund generation. Standardised advertising boards are being erected near Tee No. 10. Our target: ₹1 crore+ through sponsorships and advertising this year – resources that will directly benefit the Club and its members.

Member Amenities & Financial Prudence

We are committed to enhancing your experience without burdening your pocket. Liquor prices have been reduced by approximately 30% on select items through subsidy.

Party area rates have been rationalised – the Back Lawn is now available at ~₹10,000 (vs ₹15,000 earlier), and the Hut at ~₹4,000 (vs ₹5,000) – to encourage greater usage and fellowship.

Ladies Toilet

A long pending demand of the ladies was the renovation of the Ladies Toilet. Our club member Mr. Manipal Dhariwal (Netsmartz) stepped forward for this initiative and the work is in progress.

Caddies Welfare & Community Spirit

Our caddies are the unsung heroes of every round you play. We are proud to share that Max Hospital has completely renovated the Caddie's Toilet – a small but significant step in recognising their dignity and contribution.

I also want to extend our heartfelt gratitude to Mr. Manipal Dhariwal (Netsmartz), who has undertaken the complete renovation of the Ladies Toilet – work is already underway. This is the spirit of community that makes us more than just another Club.

And while golf is our principal focus, this Club is also about fellowship, tradition, and belonging. Baisakhi, a principal festival of our region, has not received due prominence in recent years. We have revived and celebrated it as a key event on our calendar – because our culture deserves a place alongside our sport.

Staff Welfare

To commemorate the Diamond Jubilee the club has purchased a group insurance policy for all staff members for a sum assured of Rs.5,00,000/-

In Closing

Ladies and Gentlemen, the Committee's endeavour is simple and sincere – improve the golfing experience, strengthen financial health without burdening members, modernise systems, enhance sustainability and safety, promote junior golf and welfare, and ensure that the benefits of our flagship initiatives reach every single member.

We are not here for short-term applause. We are here to leave this Club stronger in standards, stronger in systems, and stronger in spirit. That is our promise. That is our privilege.

Thank you for your trust. Thank you for your support. And as always – happy golfing.

Warm regards,

Maj R S Virk
President

CAPTAIN'S Note

Dear Members,

As we move into a particularly pleasant phase of the season, I am delighted to share that the course is currently in excellent condition. The recent stretch of rain and sunny weather has played its part beautifully, allowing the greens and fairways to flourish and revive following the harsh winter conditions.

I would also like to extend a warm welcome to our newly appointed Course Manager. We are confident that under his stewardship, the course will continue to improve and maintain the high standards that our members expect to enjoy.

The favourable playing conditions have naturally led to a busy calendar, with a number of tournaments being hosted over the past few weeks as members hosting the events chose to capitalise on the ideal golfing weather. It has been heartening to see such enthusiastic participation and competitive spirit across all categories.

That said, beyond the tournaments, I would especially encourage all members to come out and enjoy the course at their own pace. These are truly ideal conditions for a relaxed round with friends, and I hope to see more of you making the most of what the course currently offers.

We remain committed to enhancing your overall golfing experience and look forward to your continued support and participation.

Warm regards,

Alamgir Singh Grewal
Captain

From the Desk of the LADY CAPTAIN

On behalf of the Ladies Section of The Chandigarh Golf Club, I extend a very warm welcome to you all.

Summer has arrived in full blaze. Playing golf in this heat is no easy feat—it demands constant hydration, diligent sun protection, and thoughtful planning to avoid heat exhaustion. To all our golfers teeing off this season: play well, but above all, play safe.

It is both a privilege and an honour to serve as the Lady Captain of CGC for a fourth term. This has only been possible with the unwavering support of an exceptionally dedicated and talented team. The passion and commitment of my colleagues continue to inspire me every single day.

The past three months have been a whirlwind of activity, with tournaments and medal rounds keeping our calendar brimming. In the Ladies Section, every event transcends competition—it becomes an experience, a challenge, a celebration, and a shared moment of reflection.

Our Lady Captain's Day celebration this year was truly unforgettable. Dressed in our finest retro-themed ensembles, the evening came alive with spirited performances that will remain etched in our memories for years to come. The laughter, camaraderie, and exuberance of that evening beautifully captured the essence of our Ladies Section.

We were also delighted to successfully host the 9th Neelu Chopra Interclub Cup, generously sponsored by Mr. Ashwani Chopra in loving memory of his beloved late wife. It was a pleasure to welcome and host the talented golfers from DGC and NCR.

And now, all roads lead to the Chandigarh Open and our flagship event, the Punjab Open. Our team is prepared, the course is set, and we eagerly look forward to these and other landmark events on the horizon.

As I glance into the rear-view mirror of my tenure, one of my greatest joys has been mentoring new lady beginners—introducing them to the game, guiding them through its nuances of etiquette and rules, and watching them rise to remarkable heights.

Among them is Guntas Kaur Sandhu, India's No. 1 Amateur Golfer 2025, who made the nation proud as the youngest Indian to make the cut at the Women's Amateur Asia Pacific 2025. Another shining talent, Ojaswini Saraswat, continues to inspire with her skill, determination, and outstanding performances. I would also like to place on record my heartfelt gratitude to the President, Major R.S. Virk, and the Executive Committee of Chandigarh Golf Club for their unwavering support of the Ladies Section. We are confident of their continued encouragement in the future.

Here's to the spirit of women's golf—to great shots, stronger friendships, and the enduring legacy we build together.

Happy Golfing!

Ashu Singh
Ladies Captain

EDITOR'S Note

First opportunities are special. But the chance to return, try again, and do better is much rarer — and more meaningful. You come back humbler. You appreciate it more.

With sincere gratitude for your support and encouragement during this year's election, I am honored to once again serve the institution I grew up in. It is, and always will be, a privilege to serve our club.

Already this year, golf has given us a moment to remember: Rory McIlroy's second Green Jacket. We salute the spirit of his parents, who worked double shifts to support his future. Their sacrifice helped build not just a champion, but a man of character: hardworking, grounded, unafraid to stand for what's right, and a role model for golfers everywhere. After his 2026 Masters win, Rory said the struggles taught him to trust the process, not chase results. Advice that holds true on the course and in life.

That message resonates deeply. I was introduced to golf as a junior, so I understand that kind of vision. My mother was one of the few women playing at the time. When she founded the Ladies Section, we were fewer than ten. The first Chandigarh Open had fourteen players. Young girls were rarely seen on the course.

I learned the game, and the etiquette of it, from senior members I still hold in the highest regard. From Maj. Gen. G.S. Gill I learned sportsmanship — and heard, more than once, the legend of him killing a tiger with his bare hands. From Johl Aunty, the art of standing perfectly still, well out of a player's line of sight. And there were numerous others who guided and encouraged me.

Watching my mother taught me values that have lasted: resilience, hard work, and consistency will always outlast talent. Motivation fades. Negativity fades. What remains is how we show up. Today, the ladies section has over one hundred members and is counted among the best in the region. A photograph of me teeing off at the inaugural Punjab Open 32 years ago grows more meaningful with every passing year.

The CGL has also grown tremendously. I have no doubt it will leave a similar legacy. As teams prepare for another season of fine golf, healthy competition, and good company, I hope we see that same dedication on display.

In the spirit of the game we love, I hope this edition of "Mashie & Niblick" does it justice. Inside you'll find tournament updates, notes on fitness for golf, and glimpses from our social events — a full look at the first half of the year.

Wishing you good golf, good company, and many happy hours on the course.

Shona Singh Manco
Chairperson, Media & Publicity

Enhancement in IT & Digital Initiatives

Innovation • Connectivity • Transformation

With the objective of strengthening the Club's digital ecosystem and delivering a more seamless experience to members, several significant IT initiatives have been undertaken during the year. These developments are aimed at improving operational efficiency, enhancing connectivity, and building a strong technological foundation for future innovations.

● Comprehensive Website

Revamp: Work is currently underway to completely redesign the Club's website with a fresh, contemporary look, improved aesthetics, responsive design, and dynamic content. The new website is being developed with a mobile-first, fully responsive interface, ensuring a seamless browsing experience across desktops, tablets, and smartphones. It will provide members with an engaging, user-friendly platform while making Club information, announcements, and services more accessible anytime, anywhere.

● Audit & Optimization of Operational Applications:

A detailed review of all day-to-day operational applications has been carried out to ensure they accurately reflect the Club's current work flows and operational requirements. This exercise has helped streamline processes, improve system efficiency, and align technology with the Club's evolving needs.

● Modernization of Network Infrastructure:

Following a comprehensive audit of the Club Office's IT infrastructure, the entire network has been upgraded using the latest networking equipment and industry-standard components. This modernization has significantly improved network stability, speed, security, and overall system performance, providing a robust IT foundation for the Club's growing digital requirements.

● Optical Fibre Connectivity to

The Paradise: The Club has achieved a significant technological milestone by establishing its first-ever local network over an Optical Fibre backbone, connecting The Paradise (New Gazebo) with the Club House. This high-speed Fibre link not only delivers superior reliability and performance but also marks the beginning of the Club's transition towards a Fibre-enabled network infrastructure. It provides a scalable platform for future digital services, events, and smart technology integration.

● Expansion of Optical Fibre Network: Building upon this milestone, the Fibre connectivity established at The Paradise will serve as the base node for the Club's planned Optical Fibre Cable (OFC) expansion across the Road Course and other strategic locations on both golf courses. This expansion will create a robust digital backbone capable of supporting enhanced connectivity, future Wi-Fi zones, CCTV integration, smart course management, and several other technology-driven initiatives, ultimately transforming the golfing experience through reliable and high-speed digital infrastructure.

● Tournament Registration & Draws Application: To simplify tournament administration, an in-house Tournament Registration & Draws Application has been developed for the Club's monthly tournaments. The application automates the registration and draw generation process, substantially reducing manual effort while improving accuracy, transparency, and operational efficiency. The next phase of development will integrate Live Scoring, enabling members to follow tournament scores and standings in real time.

● Digitization of Member Registration Form: As part of the Club's digital transformation journey, plans are underway to digitize the Member Registration Form, allowing prospective members to complete and submit their registration electronically. This initiative will eliminate the dependency on physical forms available only at the Club Office, simplify the registration process, reduce paperwork, and significantly improve administrative efficiency.

These initiatives reflect the Club's commitment to embracing technology as an enabler of operational excellence and superior member services. As we continue this digital transformation journey, our focus remains on building a smarter, more connected, and future-ready Club that enhances both the member experience and the efficiency of Club operations.

FOOD & BEVERAGE

Over the past six months, Chandigarh Golf Club has undertaken a comprehensive transformation of its Food & Beverage (F&B) operations with the objective of delivering an enhanced dining experience for its members. As a premier social and sporting destination in the Tricity, the Club has placed the highest priority on elevating culinary standards. Guided by valuable member feedback, the F&B team has systematically revamped its catering operations with a strong emphasis on superior quality, innovative menus, operational transparency, and uncompromising hygiene standards.

Introducing the Fortnightly Weekend Menu – A Fresh Culinary Experience

Responding to members' desire for greater culinary variety, our F&B Manager and his team of chefs have introduced a unique initiative of unveiling an all-new, specially curated menu every fortnight.

THE CHANDIGARH GOLF CLUB

WEEKEND SPECIAL MENU

ROCKET AND PEAR SALAD	₹ 320
GRILLED CHICKEN ROCKET AND PEAR SALAD	360
BROCCOLI PAPAD KEBAB	315
BHUTTE KE TANDOORI SEEKH	305
TRIO PEPPER ACHARI MURGH SHASHLIK	395
CHICKEN POPCORN NEST	325

Taxes extra as applicable

Seasonal Themes: Each edition celebrates seasonal produce, regional Indian specialties, international favourites, and wholesome, health-conscious offerings.

Limited-Edition Specials: Signature dishes are prepared using carefully sourced seasonal ingredients, making each fortnight's menu a distinctive dining experience available only for that weekend.

This initiative reflects our commitment to continually refreshing the dining experience while showcasing culinary creativity and excellence.

Exclusive Offers on Select Liquor Brands

Members can continue to enjoy attractive offers on select premium liquor brands while dining at the Club's bars and restaurants. We are committed to making these exclusive promotions a regular feature, further enhancing the overall hospitality experience.

Hygiene Drive – A Zero-Tolerance Approach

Complementing our culinary initiatives is a comprehensive hygiene programme aimed at institutionalising the highest standards of cleanliness and food safety across the main kitchen, gazebos, bars, and all food preparation areas.

Continuous Sanitation: Rigorous multi-stage cleaning and sanitisation schedules are carried out throughout operational hours to minimise the risk of cross-contamination and ensure a consistently safe environment.

Pest Control: While pest management remains an ongoing challenge, significant progress has been achieved through sustained interventions. The Club remains committed to a relentless, round-the-clock effort to eliminate this concern and continually strengthen preventive measures.

Transparent Compliance & Inventory Management

To further strengthen governance and accountability, the Club has introduced several key initiatives:

Third-Party Inventory Audits: An independent audit agency has been engaged to conduct periodic audits of the F&B stores and bars, ensuring transparency and robust inventory control.

Liquor Inventory Management System: Effective 1 July 2026, the liquor store has been fully integrated into a digital inventory management system linked directly to the Club's billing software. This integration has significantly enhanced the accuracy, efficiency, and transparency of liquor inventory and accounting processes.

Health & Medical Compliance for Food Handlers

The health and well-being of our members begins with the health of those who prepare and serve their meals. It is now mandatory for all food handlers to maintain valid medical certifications, ensuring compliance with standards that exceed prescribed hygiene requirements.

Regular medical examinations have been institutionalised, and a recent vaccination drive for all food handlers was successfully conducted in association with Max Hospital, our voluntary healthcare partner.

Installation of the PNG Pipeline

We are delighted to announce the successful completion of a significant infrastructure project—the installation of a dedicated PNG pipeline—which strengthens the Club's operational resilience and safeguards uninterrupted culinary services.

In response to the uncertainties surrounding commercial LPG supplies and global energy challenges, Chandigarh Golf Club has transitioned to a secure and independent PNG gas supply network. The main kitchen and Gazebos 1 and 10 are now connected to this reliable energy source, delivering several long-term benefits:

Uninterrupted Dining Services: Ensures seamless continuity of catering, hospitality, and member dining operations.

Greater Self-Reliance: Reduces dependence on commercial LPG cylinders and unpredictable supply chains.

Cleaner & Greener Operations: Supports the Club's commitment to sustainability through the adoption of a safer, cleaner-burning fuel.

Obtaining the necessary statutory approvals and administrative clearances for last-mile connectivity was a key priority for the Management Committee. This forward-looking investment reinforces our commitment to ensuring that, despite evolving global resource challenges, members continue to enjoy an uninterrupted, premium experience — whether on the golf course or at the dining table.

The Grand Delusion - Why Golf is technically a Mental Illness

Let's be honest - if you saw a stranger in a public park screaming at a dimpled white ball, because it wouldn't "sit", or "go in the hole", you'd call for medical intervention.

But put that same person in a polo shirt, a pair of questionable fluorescent trousers (where he ends up looking like a tropical bird that lost its way) and suddenly, it's a distinguished pastime. Now he can spend four hours chasing a small white ball, that clearly doesn't want to be found.

Golf is the only sport where the primary objective is to play as little of it as possible. You pay thousands in club and caddy fees just to spend the afternoon trying to get the ball to "go home". The only game where you pay to suffer.

Basically this great game is actually a master class in voluntary insanity.

Maybe their brains are wired differently, or maybe the circuits get fried and the wiring gets a little jumbled after joining the gang of golfers. A proper research project wouldn't be out of place.

I would call it a geometry of despair - I can go to the driving range and find a rhythmic, buttery swing, but the moment you step onto the first Tee, your brain undergoes a factory reset - suddenly your arms feel like two wet noodles and your 80,000 rupees Driver - engineered by rocket scientists, primarily becomes a grass whacker. We are the only athletes who believe we can purchase skill. If a baker ruins a cake, they don't go and buy a rupees 30,000 "whisk", used by Tiger

Mrs Jyoti Gosal

Woods. But a golfer? If they 3 putt from 4 feet, they will immediately go to the pro shop to buy a putter that looks like a futuristic spaceship, convinced that this hunk of metal is the missing link to golfing greatness.

He will buy a set of clubs for the price of a small car - these clubs are marketed with aerospace technology, with words like Titanium, Uranium, Carbon etc etc, as if you're launching a satellite, rather than hitting a ball into the nearest pond.

The fault lies in the golf ball and not us - just when you expect the perfect shot, it will disappear into the trees or the water, like a witness in a mob trial. After hacking your way through most of the course, just as you are contemplating committing "Harakiri", deciding on the weapon of choice, it "happens"—The true lunacy of the game - that at the end of the misery, bunkers, dehydration and the utter exasperation of the caddy, you will hit one decent shot - Just ONE. The ball will soar like a bird, landing softly on the green with a satisfying thud.

In that moment your brain releases enough dopamine to erase the previous four hours of trauma. You'll look at your partner and say - "See I've finally figured it out", see you on Saturday at 8.00 am. All thoughts of never returning to the course vaporize faster than water on a hot griddle.

Yet put them anywhere on the planet, this fraternity of strange bedfellows will bond like two ends of a magnet. Give me these lunatics any day.

Article on Birds

Fairway Excavators

Come spring, a quiet industry hums through the trees around our golf course, often going unnoticed by passing golfers. Eyes fixed on the ball, they rarely pause to listen or observe—focused instead on a very different kind of "birdie."

High above them, however, birds—true masters of engineering—are hard at work, creating homes for the next generation. Doves, mynas, crows, green pigeons and bulbuls weave together twigs to fashion safe cradles for their eggs. Meanwhile, parakeets, hornbills and owlets compete for prized real estate: old nest cavities tucked into tree trunks.

These ready-made homes are the handiwork of three master excavators of the avian world, tirelessly chiselling into wood to create nesting holes. Their efforts not only shelter their own young but also provide vital housing for a host of other species, making them indispensable architects of this thriving aerial community.

Club Life & Features

The Black-rumped Flameback (Dinopium benghalense)

is a striking golden-backed woodpecker common across the Indian subcontinent inhabiting both urban gardens and groves. It feeds mainly on ants, termites, grubs, and other insects using its strong beak and long barbed and sticky tongue to drum and probe tree bark. It hammers the tree trunk at a speed of 20 strikes a second without suffering a headache thanks to its shock absorbing skull. Its loud drumming and sharp calls make it conspicuous. By excavating nesting cavities woodpeckers create homes for themselves which later provide housing for many other bird species. This makes them vital to the eco system.

Mrs Rima Dhillon

Coppersmith Barbet (Psilopogon haemacephalus)

A tiny bird with a surprisingly loud presence. Its tuk..tuk..tuk call, reminiscent of a hammer striking metal echoes through the hottest summer afternoons when most other birds fall silent. Feeding mostly on figs it quietly helps disperse seeds across urban landscapes. Like the Woodpeckers it too excavates a nest hole. Keeping the entrance very small prevents predators from harming the offspring. Like all males it woos the female with gifts which in the case of the barbet would be a juicy fig.

Brown-headed Barbet is a familiar yet often overlooked resident of Indian gardens, more often heard than seen. Its rhythmic kutroo...kutroo call echoes through fruiting trees where it feeds quietly on figs, mangoes, and berries, playing a vital role in seed dispersal. During the breeding season, pairs patiently chisel nest cavities in soft wood, where they raise their young on a mix of fruits and insects. Despite its bright colours, it blends seamlessly into foliage, sitting still for long periods. A persistent caller the Brown-headed Barbet can be heard throughout the year—a constant presence in our everyday soundscape.

The Fine Art Of Playing Golf

Sobha Singh, the famous artist in a live interview when asked "How do you make Portraits of the Guru's which seem to speak"

He replied that, "I do not pick up the brush until I feel the presence of the Guru in my entire being, the image remains in myself, and I nurture it within me. I let it remain till it becomes an integral part of me and then is when I pick up the brush."

This interview sparked a visual parallel within me that, why can't Golf be an Art and the Golfer an Artist?

Before every game he or she should feel, breathe, visualise and strategies' the game starting with the greens – the Canvas of the game.

Golfers are some of the most artful athletes in the world, and the art of golf takes on many forms.

They have a vision of the layout of the course in them to bring this vision to life.

The actual game of golf is quite artistic, too. It's always said that it's not you versus the other golfers; it's you versus the course. Vice versa the artist versus the canvas. Golfer must play the course to its advantages and avoid hitting the ball in a spot that will make the hole even tougher, similar to the right paint strokes on the canvas.

It takes artful skill to play different kinds of golf shots based on the ground you are on. A seemingly flat lie can be deceiving; your golf ball might be resting on a tiny piece of uneven land. It takes precision to make clean contact with the ball anywhere, not only in the fairway. An Artist too needs to choose the right Colours, the right strokes and contours!

Perhaps my favourite part of golf, and the most artsy, is the style. Of course, my motto of "look good, play good."

An Artist too needs to put his Heart & Soul and make a good painting. 'An object to be admired just as Golf strokes'

But, looking at professional golfers' outfits, they know how to combine colours and match shoes and hats to look super spiffy on the golf course. Whether it be plaid or checkered pants, bright orange everything or red and black on Sundays, golfers all have their signature styles. A splash of umpteen colours.

Just as a painter has their signature style or era of art, a golfer adheres to their style of play (or style of dress). Golf, although a sport, is artsy and beautiful, especially to those who can appreciate it, just as a masterpiece painting.

"Precision • Patience • Passion"

The Art of Patience in Golf

"Patience is an important characteristic that enables you to negotiate a shot properly and also perform your best over an entire round. The loss of patience can be the difference between scoring well and not scoring well."

Without patience the art imagined in mind too gets distracted and one cannot reach the end -The 18th. Hole.

Regardless of how your golf game is, you need to learn to exercise the ability to stay patient. Whether you are a world-class golfer, a brand-new adult player or a highly competitive junior, you need to learn to be patient in this game. If you don't, it is very, very hard to imagine that you will have any kind of real, and lasting success playing GOLF.

Just as the Artist needs practice to finish his theme of Art on his working canvas.

Golf is a game of confidence. If you can simplify golf, you can simplify life. Just as Sobha Singh put his confidence into colours and brought the canvas alive.

Whether you're a seasoned golfer or a beginner, there's always something new to learn and appreciate about golf. Here are few interesting facts about Art of Fine Golfing that will give you a deeper appreciation for the sport. Just as the varied colours and the paint brushes are for the Artist.

The beauty of Imperfection

Each game of golf is an artistic journey, and NO single game will do everything perfectly.

I think we just have to trust ourselves, embrace the process .and know that even when it feels the Game is unfinished, it might be exactly what it needs to be.

Fitness Piece

Golf may look like a calm and low-impact sport, but in reality it requires a powerful combination of flexibility, strength, balance, and coordination. A proper golf swing involves the whole body—from the shoulders and spine to the hips and legs. Because of this, stretching is not just helpful for golfers—it is essential.

Because a good swing depends heavily on flexibility. The more mobile your joints and muscles are, the greater your range of motion. Proper stretching can help golfers achieve better swing mechanics by allowing for a smoother, more natural motion. This allows a golfer to achieve a full backswing and follow-through without strain. Flexibility is essential for maintaining long-term health in a golfer's life. As people age, muscles and joints naturally become stiff. Regular stretching and flexibility exercises help.

Better Rotation and Mobility-Mobility is your ability to move a joint through a range of motion with control. In golf swing, joints do not work in isolation. Mobility is usable range. It is the range you can reach, coordinate, and control on your own. The golf swing relies heavily on rotational movement, particularly in the spine and hips. Limited mobility in these areas can lead to poor swing mechanics and even pain. Stretching enhances rotational ability, helping golfers achieve a fluid and natural swing.

Reduced Fatigue

A typical round of golf can last several hours. Tight muscles fatigue more quickly, which can negatively affect performance as the game progresses. Stretching helps to alleviate muscle tension and tightness, which can build up due to the repetitive nature of golf swings. Stretching helps improve blood flow in body and muscle efficiency, helping golfers stay energized and focused for longer periods.

Reducing Risk of Injury

Golf involves same repetitive movements that can place stress on the body, especially the lower back, shoulders, and joints. Poor flexibility can lead to muscle tightness, increasing the risk of injuries such as strains and pain.

By improving flexibility, golfers can reduce tension in the muscles and joints, allowing the body to handle stress more effectively. This plays a vital role in maintaining long-term fitness and avoiding injuries.

When to Use:

Dynamic stretching is perfect for pre-round warm-ups. It activates the muscles, enhances mobility, and reduces the risk of injury. Because Dynamic stretches target the key areas used in golf, such as the hips, shoulders, and core. Dynamic stretching not only prepares the body physically but also mentally. It helps golfers feel more alert, loose, and ready to perform. Since it closely resembles actual playing movements, it creates a smooth transition from warm-up to gameplay. Before teeing off, perform dynamic stretches like leg swings, arm circles, and walking lunges to ensure your body is ready for the rotational and lateral demands of a full round.

1. Leg Swings-Stand next to a wall or golf cart for balance. Swing one leg forward and backward, gradually increasing the range of motion. Repeat for 10–15 swings on each leg
2. Swing with Club -Hold a golf club with both hands and swing it back and forth in a controlled, rhythmic motion, gradually increasing the range and speed of the swing.
3. Shoulder and arm rotation: With arms extended, perform circles, starting with small movements and gradually increasing the radius. Do 10 repetitions in each direction to increase mobility in the shoulders, key in golf.

Vision is something many of us take for granted — the ability to watch a golf ball sail across the fairway, admire the greens after a morning round, or simply witness the beauty of a Chandigarh sunset. Yet for thousands of people, even the simplest sights remain beyond reach.

In a progressive and community-minded city like Chandigarh, awareness about organ and eye donation has steadily grown. Several reputed eye hospitals and eye banks in the region work tirelessly to collect and transplant donated corneas, helping patients from across North India regain their sight. Yet the demand for donor corneas continues to far exceed the available supply.

Corneal blindness affects millions worldwide, and India carries a significant share of this burden. Many individuals lose their vision due to corneal infections, injuries, or genetic disorders. Fortunately, modern medicine offers hope through corneal transplantation — a procedure that restores sight using donated corneas. This life-changing treatment is made possible only through the generosity of eye donors.

Eye donation is a remarkable act of kindness. After a person passes away, the cornea — the transparent front layer of the eye — can be retrieved within a few hours and transplanted into individuals suffering from corneal blindness. A single donor has the power to restore vision to two people, allowing them to regain independence and experience the world anew.

What makes eye donation particularly meaningful is its simplicity. People of almost any age can pledge their eyes, and the procedure does not disfigure the face or delay funeral arrangements. It is a dignified process that allows a person's compassion to live on long after they are gone.

This is where awareness and community participation become essential. Conversations within families, social groups, and institutions can encourage more people to pledge their eyes. A small decision today can become a life-changing gift for someone tomorrow.

Clubs such as ours often bring together individuals who value service, leadership, and social responsibility. Supporting awareness about eye donation is one simple yet powerful way we can contribute to society — a gesture that reflects the spirit of giving back.

Ultimately, eye donation is about leaving behind a legacy of light. It is the quiet assurance that even after our journey ends, we can help someone else see the world — its colors, its beauty, and its endless possibilities.

Because sometimes, the greatest gift we can leave behind is the gift of sight. ✨

The putter is one of the most important club in the bag, accounting for roughly 50% of all strokes made in a round. Over the years junior golfers have benefitted from availability of junior golf sets, manufactured to suit their needs. In the past about 15 years ago or so, juniors played with cut down adult clubs as their first set as junior golf sets were not available easily. This included the putter, since choices from manufacturers are plenty these days choosing an appropriate juniors putter can become confusing. Lets consider a few things that will be helpful in selecting a new putter for a junior golfer.

LENGTH: Length for a putter is the first consideration when picking the right putter for a junior golfer. Putter too long will be too heavy and will produce inconsistent results. A putter that is too long will cause a junior to stand too upright and away from the ball or choke down, resulting in heel of the putter hitting the green first and twisting the putter face resulting poor stroke and inconsistent putts.

WEIGHT: Weight of the putter is generally related to length of the putter, find a putter which kids can comfortably make a stroke without losing their balance. Heavy putters can cause too much wrist movement and excessive body movement losing the putter arc and rhythm.

LIE ANGLE: Ensure that putter sits flat on the green. Without the toe or the heel disconnecting from the green.

GRIP SIZE: A grip that is too big will lose feel while one that is too small can cause too much wrist action. A proper sized grip helps keep the club face square.

ALIGNMENT AIDS: Look for a putter with high contrast lines or dots on the putter head to help juniors aim straight.

Choose a putter that not only looks good and feels good but is correct size.

TYPES & SHAPE OF PUTTERS:

MALLET PUTTERS.....recommended for beginners due to their high stability, forgiveness, large heads and high moment of inertia (MOI) which helps reduce twisting of the center hits, creating a larger sweet spot.

BLADE PUTTERS.....traditional sleek designs that provide good feedback, ideal for players with consistent stroke.

MID MALLET PUTTERS.....a balance between mallet putters and blade putters offering better alignment than blades and more control than large mallets.

TWO WAY PUTTERS.....ideal for very young or beginner juniors allowing them to putt from both sides. Useful for ambidextrous kids.

Choosing a putter for a junior these days is more complicated than it was years back when we had very few choices. Select a putter that not only looks smart and feels good but is of appropriate size for a junior.

Ball of Sun

It was a good start at early morn,
At the break of dawn, the moon just gone.
A hush lay soft on dew-kissed ground,
Where hope and silence seemed like a pleasant sound.

I decided to play a fun-golfing round,
With steady breath and focus all around.
An enthusiastic stride, happy heart and a spirit tall,
Awaited my fate beside the ball.

Sixteen watchful eyes aligned,
As winter's trees stood well, defined.
"It's six o'clock," the starter called,
Time on the Clubhouse wall, seemed briefly stalled.

The caddie whispered, calm and sure,
"Trust your swing, and the game endure"
One stood as an enchanting, silhouette,
Against a sky with hues of amber so beautifully set.

The club drew back, the world grew still,
A measured arc of the driver's will.
The tee box felt the earth's soft hum,
As night gave way to rising sun.

Leaves descended, slowly and some did stall,
Like divine blessings some big, some small.
The heart, sometimes on a gallop and at times on a trot ,
"The Sun, as the golfer's ball, resembles a glowing dot."

For there it rested, round and bright,
Balanced with a sublime light.
As I struck with all my might,
The ball took a mercurial flight,

Both, the green and glory it fiercely chased
It soared through the sky and remained unfazed,
And in that swing, so bold, so far,
I met the morning, with my hands and heart ajar.

Swinging Rhymes

*Some tipsy rhymes, for swinging times
Golf instruction, in nursery rhymes
Magic pills, just pop a few
Keep it simple, follow the cue.*

- *Enter rhythm, exit speed
Annika's recipe, cooked in a dish
Count one-two-three, to swing to the top
One-two-three again, to the finish.*
- *Swing the same, whether short or long
Wedge or wood, same rhythm and song
The length of swing is, in auto mode
Even putt is automatic, strike or stroke.*
- *Head is the hub, your arms the spoke
The axis of rotation, Nicklaus wrote
If you move the axis, you move the arc
Keep the head still, to improve the mark.*
- *Left arm is the radius, of your swing
Let it travel, wide in backswing
But start it back soft, let the body coil
Shoulders, arms and hands, should coil in sync.*
- *If you swing around the axis, of lower spine
And turn your hips around, you will be fine
But don't shift weight, outside of right foot
Turn, don't slide, as Nicklaus put.*
 - *Lift left heel, if you must
In backswing, no big fuss
Flexibility decides, not rigid instruction
Nicklaus lifted his heel, and Tom Watson.*

The Last Common Ground

There are not many places left where a General, a bureaucrat, a politician, a schoolgirl, a doctor between rounds, a businessman who flew in that morning, a lawyer who left his briefs at the gate, a young golfer chasing his handicap down, and a caddie who has walked these fairways for thirty years can all share the same patch of grass before noon.

Modern life works quietly against this. We live in different neighbourhoods, work in different professions, read different news, and increasingly mistake being connected for being in company. The chances to genuinely meet someone outside our own circle are fewer than they once were.

A golf club quietly resists this.

To call it a sporting venue undersells it. Spend enough time here and it becomes clear that the Club is closer to an institution: a place where generations overlap without effort, where friendships form without an agenda, and where respect is earned through conduct rather than conferred by title.

On any given morning, the variety on the first tee makes the point better than any argument could. Some have played this course for decades and could walk it blind; others are still learning which end of the club to hold. The round has a way of levelling all of it.

Golf is an unusually honest teacher in this respect. It does not care who you are. A poor shot is a poor shot, whether played by a minister or a member alike. The only currencies that consistently pay off are patience, discipline and plain honesty. That may be why friendships made on a golf course tend to last: they were never about anything except how you behaved when nobody was watching the scoreboard.

None of this shows up on a scorecard. The real measure of a club is in its relationships: how new members are welcomed, how staff and caddies are spoken to, how its traditions are kept and its memory preserved.

That measure depends on continuity. Every generation inherits something built by the ones before it and quietly takes on the responsibility of leaving it a little better for whoever comes next, not only in trophies and handicaps, but in the everyday fabric of the place.

This past year has offered plenty of evidence of that work. A new gazebo. An ambulance and a defibrillator now on permanent standby, a medicine trolley, and members trained in BLS. Health camps that brought doctors onto the grounds, and now a tie-up with Max Hospital for on-site care. A green initiative, tree plantation, a solar plant, LED conversion, and a sewage treatment plant that will quietly reduce what the Club takes from the city around it. Then there are the caddy-welfare programs. The list is long. And it says something about the kind of institution CGC is choosing to be.

What connects a new gazebo to a defibrillator to a tree planted this season isn't obvious at first glance. But it's there: a sense that an institution like this owes something to its members, to the people who work here, to the city it sits in, and to whoever inherits it next.

That, in the end, may be the Club's quieter purpose. It gathers people who would disagree about politics, careers, or almost everything else, and gives them one thing to agree on: that this place is worth showing up for, looking after, and handing on in better shape than they found it.

The fairways and greens matter, of course. But what makes Chandigarh Golf Club what it is sits somewhere less visible than that, in the people who turn up here again and again, and in the small, accumulating ways they choose to take care of each other and the place itself.

A hole-in-one is often described as golf's perfect moment — a single swing, a single strike, and the ball disappears into the cup as if drawn by fate. To the casual observer, it may seem like pure luck. And yes, fortune does play its part. But to those who understand the game, a hole-in-one is where preparation meets opportunity.

Taraa Kaur

Behind that fleeting moment lies hours of practice, a repeatable swing, precise club selection, and the ability to read conditions — wind, slope, distance, and pressure. It demands commitment to the shot and the confidence to execute it fully. The margin for error is razor-thin, and yet, time and again, skilled golfers give themselves that chance.

Perhaps that is what makes an ace so special. It is not merely a stroke of luck, but a reward — a convergence of skill, intent, and timing. Each one carries a story, a memory etched into both the player and the course forever.

In the pages that follow, we celebrate those moments at our club — each hole-in-one, and the golfers who made them happen.

Captain's Cup Inaugurated at The Chandigarh Golf Club

The Chandigarh Golf Club successfully hosted the inaugural edition of the Captain's Cup, a prestigious new tournament instituted in honour of the Club Captain, Mr. Alamgir Singh Grewal. Played over two days on June 20 and 21, the championship coincided with the Father's Day weekend and brought together the club's finest amateur golfers.

Restricted exclusively to single-handicap golfers (0-9 handicap), the 36-hole stroke play event witnessed highly competitive golf, with participants battling challenging course conditions and a strong field throughout the tournament.

Emerging as the inaugural Captain's Cup Champion was Dilsher Singh Grewal who displayed remarkable consistency over both rounds to finish with an impressive aggregate score of 146 (71, 75).

H. S. Kang secured the Runner-Up position with a total score of 149, while Tarun Lehal finished as the Second Runner-Up with a score of 154.

DINKY CARS AND A LEGEND: A TRIBUTE TO HARI SINGH

By Deepak Ohlyan NBD 1985

Back in the mid-70s at Sanawar, when we were in prep school, Hari and I were very close friends. We were just about 8 or 9 years old. Those were simple days but even then Hari had a deep love for cars, especially his dinky cars.

And Sundays meant one thing for us ... racing !!

Hari had two dinky cars, his favourite was a tough little SUV, covered with flashy stickers, flames, rally-style markings, clearly inspired by the Himalayan Car Rally. The other was a sleek racer. I had my own blue, sleek dinky car too. Three very different cars, one shared obsession.

Our track was the PD slope outside, with those narrow stormwater drains running along the road.

That became our rally course.

We would release the cars at the top of the slope and watch them dashing down, picking up speed with every second. But Hari didn't just enjoy the run, he wanted control.

So he started building the course.

Small mud ramps to break speed. Bamboo pieces to guide direction. Clay landings to keep the cars from flying out. He kept adjusting, testing, improving.

And then came his signature move, bamboo tunnels.

After a jump, the dinky car had to land right, straighten itself, and pass through the tunnel clean. If it didn't, it crashed. Simple rule. No shortcuts.

There was one stretch I remember clearly.

He would let one car go and watch it closely, how it lifted off the ramp, where it landed, how it aligned into the tunnel. Then he would send the second car, adjusting the ramp slightly, changing the angle, testing again.

Sometimes he would release both cars together. Sometimes one right after the other.

Not racing, Observing, Comparing. Learning !!

Even in those days, I would quietly watch and admire the way he thought. He wasn't guessing-he was calculating.

Speed, angle, lift, landing, recovery.

He would judge how fast the car was coming, how much lift the ramp should give, how the car would align into the tunnel, and how to slow it down again through the next obstacle.

We thought we were playing.

He was already in control.

At one stretch, the drain actually cut across the road at a sharp turn and then dropped steep on the other side. Nature gave the challenge.

Hari made it tougher.

And when it rained, it became a different game altogether. Water flowing through the drains, speed unpredictable, cars slipping, crashing, spinning out.

And us, just laughing and resetting the race again.

Looking back now, it feels so obvious.

He was always going to be a winner.

Years later, I reminded him of all this. The slope, the drains, the races.

For a moment, everything else faded.

He smiled and said, "Olly, you have to write this story for me."

I didn't. Life got busy, as it always does.

Then one day, he called me from somewhere in the mountains, Ladakh or somewhere up there, and said, "Olly, tell this story to my rally friends."

And I did.

But I still didn't write it.

So here it is now.

Hari Singh

One kid went on to become the Gypsy King, mastering mountains, machines, and terrains most of us would never dare.

The other climbed the corporate ladder, in a very different world.

But it all started the same way.

Dinky cars. One slope. Endless imagination.

And that boy who became a legend, chasing mountains, mastering machines, and living life full throttle.

Hari Bro, I'm sorry I didn't write this for you when you asked me to.

This one is long overdue.

Hope I've done justice to those memories.

Legacy & Remembrance

IS BINDRA

The sporting community recently bid farewell to Mr. Inderjit Singh Bindra, a distinguished administrator whose legacy and contributions have left a lasting imprint on Indian cricket and the sporting landscape of Punjab. His passing marked the end of a remarkable life defined by public service, vision, and leadership. For those of us who grew up watching him Captain The Chandigarh Golf Club, he was a visionary who altered our limited perception of the world, proving that anything was possible.

Mr Bindra or 'Bindra uncle' as our generation referred to him, helped find sponsors for young golfers aspiring to play aboard. As a young journalist studying abroad I received my first introduction to IMG through him and was overwhelmed at the impact he had on everyone who knew him, regardless of where they were in the world.

A member of the Indian Administrative Service belonging to the Punjab cadre, he combined the discipline of a civil servant with his passion for sport to become one of the most influential figures in Indian cricket administration, helping guide the sport through a transformative era both nationally and internationally.

Mr. Bindra served as President of the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) from 1993 to 1996, a period during which Indian cricket gained global prominence. His leadership was marked by a modern, professional approach to administration and a keen understanding of the sport's commercial and global potential. He was also among the key administrators who helped secure the 1987 Cricket World Cup for the Indian subcontinent, the first time the tournament was hosted outside England—a milestone that changed the geography of world cricket.

Perhaps even more enduring was his long association with the Punjab Cricket Association (PCA), of which he served as President from 1978 to 2014. Under his leadership cricket infrastructure and grassroots development in Punjab flourished. The transformation of Mohali into a major international cricket venue stands as a testament to his vision, and in recognition of his immense contribution, the PCA stadium in Mohali was later renamed The Punjab Cricket Association I. S. Bindra Stadium.

Mr. Bindra's influence extended beyond administration. Those who worked with him often recall a man of quiet authority, strategic foresight, and unwavering commitment to the growth of sport. His efforts helped shape the professional and commercial framework that modern Indian cricket now enjoys.

While his name will forever be associated with cricket, Mr. Bindra belonged to a generation of administrators who believed deeply in the role of sport in society—its ability to inspire, unite, and elevate communities. His regular golf game with Mr RS Mann and Mr Milkha Singh was the highlight of the course for years, creating memories that will live on.

Lt. Gen K.S. Mann, PVSM (Retd): A Life of Service, Grace, and Enduring Legacy

At The Chandigarh Golf Club, where tradition meets quiet excellence, the memory of Lt. Gen K.S. Mann (Retd), PVSM, continues to linger with deep respect and affection. A soldier of remarkable distinction and a gentleman in every sense, his presence—once a familiar and reassuring sight on the fairways—now lives on in the stories, values, and friendships he left behind.

Commissioned into the Bihar Regiment in 1960, Gen Mann served the Indian Army with exceptional dedication for nearly four decades, rising to the highest levels of leadership, including his appointment as Director General of Infantry. A veteran of the 1971 Bangladesh War and a recipient of the Param Vishisht Seva Medal, his career was defined by courage, clarity of command, and an unwavering sense of duty. Yet, beyond the uniform, he carried a quiet humility that endeared him to all who knew him.

Golf, for Gen Mann, was more than a pastime—it was an extension of his character. At the Chandigarh Golf Club, he was known for his composed demeanor, disciplined play, and impeccable etiquette. His swing carried the same balance and precision that marked his years in service, while his conduct on the course reflected fairness, patience, and grace.

Equally central to his life were his deeply held family values. Despite the demands of a distinguished military career, he remained a devoted family man—anchored by integrity, respect, and a strong sense of responsibility. He took immense pride in his family, nurturing close bonds and leading by example, instilling in them the same principles of discipline, humility, and service that defined his own life.

What many will remember most, however, is his camaraderie. He had a rare ability to make everyone feel at ease—sharing a thoughtful word, an encouraging smile, or a story from his rich life experience. Younger members looked up to him, not only for his achievements but for the warmth and wisdom he so generously offered.

Though he is no longer among us, Lt. Gen K.S. Mann's legacy endures—in the echoes of laughter on the greens, in the quiet respect of fellow golfers, and in the enduring spirit of the Club he so cherished.

Lt. GEN. DEPINDER SINGH

Lieutenant General Depinder Singh, PVSM, VSM, former President of The Chandigarh Golf Club, passed away on April 28, 2026, at the age of 96. A distinguished soldier, respected leader and gentleman golfer, he leaves behind a remarkable legacy of service to the nation and to the Club.

Commissioned into the 8 Gorkha Rifles in 1950, Lt. Gen Depinder Singh enjoyed an illustrious military career spanning nearly four decades. He served as Military Assistant to Field Marshal Sam Manekshaw during the pivotal years leading up to the 1971 war, later commanded formations across the country, and went on to become General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Southern Command. He is best remembered as the overall commander of the Indian Peace Keeping Force (IPKF) during Operation Pawan in Sri Lanka. After retirement, he settled in the Tricity and remained an active member of

My father also known as Chaudhary Sahib by all his friends

Beyond his successful career and the responsibilities of public office, my father was a man of remarkable discipline. His day unfailingly began at 4:00 a.m., a habit he maintained till his last day. Long before the sunrise, he would prepare for the day and head to the Chandigarh Golf Club, a place that became his second home. Even while he was touring Punjab he would be carrying his golf set and his game would be fixed a day prior at the place where he was visiting. Golf was far more than a pastime for him it was a way of life and pleasure approached the game with the intense focus, grace, and integrity. Fellow Golfers admired his competitive spirit. One of the highlights of every day was the hearty breakfast shared at the clubhouse after a round of golf. These breakfasts were about much more than food. They were moments of laughter, conversation, and lifelong friendships. Whether discussing the finer the region's sporting and service communities. As President of the Chandigarh Golf Club, he brought the same dignity, discipline and integrity that defined his military career. He was admired by fellow members for his gracious presence, thoughtful counsel and unwavering commitment to the values of sportsmanship and camaraderie. The Chandigarh Golf Club mourns the loss of a distinguished President, soldier and gentleman. We extend our heartfelt condolences to his family and pray that his soul rests in peace. His legacy of leadership, honour and service will continue to inspire generations to come.

points of the game, public affairs, or simply enjoying each other's company, he was known for his warmth, wit, and quiet wisdom. His presence brought people together, and his sportsmanship earned him immense respect both on and off the course. The Chandigarh Golf Club was not just a sporting venue for him it was an extension of his family. His love for golf inspired other family members also creating a lasting family legacy.. He was a true gentleman whose humility, discipline, & grace left a lasting impression on everyone fortunate enough to know him. Deeply missed by family members, relatives and friends His soul still resides in the golf club.
